

MOUNT LAWLEY SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL LAWLEY UPDATE Term 4 November 2010 No. 14

PRINCIPAL'S REPORT

The school farewelled the Year 12 cohort with the final assembly and associated activities and the Awards evening. The behaviour of the students was excellent and this was appreciated. They were asked to exit the school with dignity and this they did. They showed respect to younger students, their teachers and the institution. As a group their conduct at the Awards evening was the best I have seen in my time as Principal of the school. Parents of the cohort can have a sense of pride in their conduct. To all final year students, thank you.

The WACE examinations have commenced and the best wishes of all are with the candidates. Parents of Year 12 are again reminded that students must attend all examinations and try their best. Not to do so may have implications for Graduation, which is the foundation to enter post-school education or training. Parents are also reminded that where students are sick they should contact Mr Johnston to consider sickness or misadventure consideration.

The school's early start Year 11 and Year 12 commences next week. This is an innovative program designed to provide students with additional instructional time to complete courses. Students will be able to make an assessment as to the suitability of subject choices and if necessary, make changes at the end of the year in order to posture them best for success. This has involved teachers and support staff undertaking a range of important tasks to establish the conditions for success with this program. It is noted that a number of students intending to study Year 11 at the school in 2011 to enrol now to participate in early start. These students and parents are welcomed to Mount Lawley SHS.

In planning for 2011, we are considering a change for the Awards evening in terms of scheduling the event. Due to the structure of the school year and the start of WACE examinations providing only two weeks of Term 4, we are considering holding the Awards evening after WACE examinations. We are also looking at the best time to farewell the group, trading off school-based revision and private study at home. This is a matter that will be canvassed at the next P&C meeting. The views of parents are important and this will be considered in the final decision. This model is one that other schools have found to be a workable solution.

It is also pleasing to be able to congratulate two students for

A THOUGHT

Character is like a tree and reputation like its shadow. The shadow is what we think of it, the tree is the real thing.

TIPS FOR YOUR KIDS & TEENS

- Think before you post! Content posted online can be there forever. You can put it up, but you can't necessarily take it down.
- Be considerate—only send the kind of messages and photos you would be happy to receive.
- Remember that sexting can be illegal, so never share naked images of yourself or forward images you have received.
- Say no if someone asks you to do something—like take or pass on a photo—that makes you feel uncomfortable.
- Don't be embarrassed—talk to a trusted adult if someone pressures you to do something that makes you feel uncomfortable or sends you content that worries you.
- Stay aware of what's going on around you and guard your privacy. Remember, if you can take pictures of everything and everyone with your phone, so can others ... and you may not want to be the subject of their photos!

• If you have sent an image or message that you regret, seek advice from a trusted adult.

• Confidential guidance and advice can also be found at the Cybersmart Online Helpline on the Cybersmart website or call Kids Helpline direct on 1800 55 1800.

SEXTING

Australian Communications and Media Authority

SAFE SEXTING

THERE'S NO SUCH THING

Sexting refers to the sending of provocative or sexual photos, messages or videos, generally using a mobile phone. It can also include posting this type of material online.

While sharing suggestive images or text messages may seem like innocent flirting or be amusing for many young people, sexting can have serious social and legal consequences.

Young people sometimes willingly share images of themselves, naked. However, sexting can also happen in response to peer pressure.

Sexting can have unforeseen consequences. For example, a 15 year old girl takes a topless photo of herself and sends it to her boyfriend's mobile phone, at his request. After their relationship ends, the boy posts the photo with unflattering comments on a social networking site for friends to see.

Images taken without the person's knowledge or consent and forwarded on to others can also be considered sexting.

SOCIAL IMPLICATIONS

Once images and messages are sent they can often spread rapidly. If images are posted online it can almost be impossible to remove them or to control access to them.

As a result, sexting can cause embarrassment both now and in the future. Family, friends, future partners and employers may have access to sexting images and messages, which can damage your child's or teen's reputation.

Sexting can also lead to cyberbullying, sexual harassment or at its most extreme, assault.

To remain safe, young people need to consider how they deal with their own, and others', messages and images. It can be easy for them to forget the potential impact of their actions in an online environment.

LEGAL IMPLICATIONS

Sexting has legal implications which should be taken seriously. Under Australian law, young people may be committing a crime when taking, receiving or forwarding sexual images of themselves or friends who are minors. This applies even if all participants are willing.

These acts can represent the production or distribution of child pornography.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

- Warn your child about the social and legal consequences of sexting.
- Remind them to think before they act—taking or sending sexual images, even of themselves, has social implications and may be illegal.
- Remind your child to delete any sexual content they receive from others and to avoid forwarding this type of content.
- Remind your child to consider the feelings of others when distributing any content by mobile phone or online.
- Learn how to use your child's mobile phone and talk with them about what they can and can't do with it.
- If you are concerned that a sexting incident may be a criminal matter, contact your local police.
